IF YOU'RE DEFEATED, BE A MAN.

The smile of jet is victory to nothing here amounts

A coward when he's ap on top can wear a cheerful grin.

And any weakling can be strong when he is sure to win.

But when you're in a lesing game and know defeat is near.

It counts a lot then how you act, and if you smile or speer.

There is no doubt it's tough to lose, to see your plans go wrong.

To find that you are weak where you had hoped you welld be strong:

It harts to see the victory slip, but that's a part of life.

And one must lose and one must win in corry strip.

But when your best's not good enough, still keep your nature fine, And do not spoil the fight you've made by starting in to white.

Seek not to tear the crown from him whose brow it rests upon.

Nor to try to justify yourself by what he may have done.

Don't whimper vain excuses for the showing you have made.

For that belittles you and not the game your rival played.

Defest is bitter, but my boy, you'll find it wisdom's plan.

When one the cuy is at your lips, to drink it like a man.
